The Star and Sentinel.

OUR CHILDHOOD.

BY GEO. D. PRENTICE.

'Tis sad, yet sweet, to listen
To the soft wind's gentle swell,
And think we hear the music
Our childhood knew so well;
To gaze out on the even,
And the boundless fields of air,
And feel again our boyhood's wish
To roam like angels there.

There are many dreams of gladness
That cling around the past—
And from the tomb of feeling
Old thoughts come thronging fast;
The forms we loved so dearly
In the happy days now gone,
The beautiful and lovely,
So fair to look upon.

Those bright and gentle maidens
Who seemed so formed for bliss,
Too glorious and too heavenly
For such a world as this;
Whose dark, soft eyes seemed swimming
In a sea of liquid light,
And whose locks of gold were streaming
O'er brows so sunny bright.

Whose smiles were like the sunshine
In the spring-time of the year—
Like the changeful gleams of April,
They followed every tear!
They have passed—like hopes away,
And their loveliness has fled;
Oh, many a heart is mourning,
That they are with the dead.

Like the brightest buds of summer,
They have fallen with the stem;
Yet, oh, it is a lovely death
To fade from earth like them!

And yet the thought is saddening
To muse on such as they,
And feel that all the beautiful
Are passing fast away;
That the fair ones whom we love
Grow to each loving breast
Like the tendril of the creeping vine,
Then perish where they rest.

And we can but think of these,
In the soft and gentle spring,
When the trees are waving o'er us,
And the flowers are blossoming;
And we know that winter's coming
With his cold and stormy sky,
And the glorious beauty round us
Is budding but to die!

ONLY ONE FAULT.

BY MARY KYLE DALLAS.

You may see it in Greenwood Cemetery. A splendid tomb-stone, with a woman's name upon it. Not Ruth Holly—though that is the name under which you shall know her—but a prouder name, and one you may have heard. Flowers grow about her tomb and the turf lies softly over it.—You would scarcely guess her life and its sad end as you stood there. Rather would you fancy that love and tenderness surrounded one, over whom such costly piles of sculptured marble rears itself, from her birth unto her death.

It is a story such as I seldom write—this life of hers—one that cannot be ended by happy reunions and the sweet sound of marriage bells; but there are too many such stories in the world to be quietly passed over, if, haply, there be any warning in them. The lives of others are, if we read them rightly, the best sermons ever preached, and this of Ruth Holly's is only too true. Yet it began very sweetly, like some old pastoral poem. She loved, and was loved again, and the man she loved had only one fault. He was young, he was brave, he was witty, he was handsome, he was generous; his love was devotion, his friendship no lukewarm thing of words; he had great talent and great power. His eloquence had thrilled many an audience worth thrilling. What he wrote touched the soul to the very quick. He was an amateur painter and musician, and everywhere was loved and honored and admired. He had only one fault in the world—he drank too much wine at times. When he did so he turned, so said convivial friends, into a very demi-god. It was wrong; but not so bad as might have been, and he would sow his wild oats some day, they said, loving him as his friends all loved him; and so Ruth thought. Sweet, loving, beautiful Ruth, to whom he plighted his truth, and wooed in verse and song, and with his most eloquent eyes, long before he put his passion into words; but so did not think Ruth Martin's father. This one fault of Edward Holly's overshadowed his virtue in his eyes, and he refused him his daughter's hand giving him the reason why, plainly and not kindly.

"You'll be a drunkard yet, Ned Holly," said the old man, shaking his head sternly. "I've seen men of genius go the same road before. I've often said I'd rather have no talent in my family, since it seems to lead so surely to dissipation. My sons are not too brilliant to be sober men, thank heaven, and as for my daughter, only a sober gentleman shall have her for a wife; you'd break her heart, Ned Holly."

So the dashing man of letters felt himself insulted, and retorted hotly, and the two were enemies.

Ruth suffered bitterly; she loved her father, and she loved Edward; to disobey her parent, or to break her lover's heart, seemed the only choice offered her. She had other lovers, she had seen much society, and had been introduced to the highest circles in France as well as in England; but amongst all the men she had know none pleased her as Edward Holly did. Not what one styles an intellectual woman herself, she reverenced intellect, and her affections were intense. The struggle in her heart was terrible.

She met her lover by stealth, against her father's will; but for a long while she resisted his entreaties to marry him in defiance of the old man's refusal. At last, angered by her persistence in obedience, Edward accused her of fearing to link her destiny to the fortunes of one comparatively poor—one who must brave his own way up life's steep hill without assistance. The unmerited reproach sunk deeply into her warm heart, and in a sudden impulse of tenderness and sympathy she gave him the promise he had so long sought in vain. They were married that evening, and before morning were upon their way to a far off city where Edward, sanguine and conscious of the power, believed that he should make for himself a name and position of which any woman might be proud. To her father Ruth wrote a long and loving letter, imploring his forgiveness, but the answer crushed all hope within her bosom.

"As you sow, so must you reap," were the words the old man wrote. "I have no longer a daughter," and Ruth knew that henceforth—(for she had been motherless for years), she had in all the world only the husband for whom she had sacrificed fortune, and, what is worth far more, the tender protection of a father.

In those early days Edward did his best to make amends for all, and she was so proud of him, and so fond of him that she soon forgot to grieve.

She heard his name uttered in praise by all. She knew that he had but to keep steadily on to mount to the proudest seat in fame's high temple, and for a year she had no fear of his faltering. Now and then a feverish something in his voice and manner, a strange light in his eye, a greater flow of eloquence in his talk, a more passionate demonstration of love for her than usual told that he was under the influence of wine, but, the fact only seemed to enhance his power of fascination; never was he so brilliant, never so handsome. Almost could Ruth have laughed at the sermons preached by temperance folks, of the harm sure to follow wine drinking.

If the story could end here, the true story of Ruth Holly's life, it would be almost a happy one, but, alas, the sunny slope down which it seemed so easy to slide, daily grew darker as the years flew on. How they began to tell her the fate before her, Ruth hardly knew.

A little flash of shame came first when his step was unsteady and his voice too loud. Then a grieved tear or two when he was unreasonable. Then a sorrow that kept her heart aching night and day; for the man who had first won inspiration from the glass now lost it in its depths; lectures to be delivered were not given to the expectant public because "of the illness of lecturer."

Ruth knew what the illness meant, and tried to hide it. Literary work was neglected also. Money was lost that might have been easily won. Debts grew and credit lessened; the handsome suite of rooms was exchanged for one quite shabby. Ruth's dress became poverty-stricken, her husband was out at elbows and at toes—he was intoxicated from morning until night, and yet she loved him and clung to him, and in his sober moments he loved her as fondly as ever. Sometimes the old strength and the old hope would be aroused in him and he would struggle to regain his lost position, but it was all in vain; rum triumphed, and five years from her one wedding day Ruth found herself with her one remaining child, the first had died within a year of its birth, in the dingiest of wretched tenement houses in a state bordering on beggary.

Edward had been more madly intoxicated that day than ever before; he had even given her a blow; and now, as the night wore on, he muttered and raved and called for brandy, and cursed her and himself, until she trembled with fear. At last, as the clock struck ten, he started to his feet and staggered out of the room, vowing to get drunk somewhere.

Poor Ruth stood where he had left her, for a few moments. The memory of the past was strong on her that night. Just at this hour five years before they had fled from her father's home together. How tender he was, how loving, how gentle! How he vowed that she should never regret that night, and how had he kept those promises? He had broken every vow—he neither cherished nor protected her. His worldly goods he had given to the ravenous demon, drink; his love had become a something scarcely worth having, and yet she loved him and clung to him. She tried to feel cold and hard to him, but she could not; she strove to remember the blow he had given her, the oaths he had uttered, but she answered herself as she did so, "It was not he who did it—it was rum." She listened to the uncertain, reeling footstep in the street below and burst into tears.

"My poor darling," she whispered, as she thought some grievous calamity had smitten him into the thing he was, and he had not himself "put an enemy into his mouth to steal away his brain," unmindful of her pleading, unmindful of her woe and of her shame. She thought of him reeling helplessly along the street, and feared that some harm would come to him. He might injure himself, or some one might injure him. He might fall in some out-of-the-way place and lie there undiscovered, and so freeze to death that bitter night; and in her agony of terror, poor Ruth could not restrain herself from following him.

Her poor, weakly baby slept; she wrapped it in a blanket and laid it in its poor cradle. Then she threw her warm shawl over her head and hastened down the street, busy this late Saturday night with market-going people of the poorer classes.

A little way before her reeled the handsome broad shouldered figure of her husband, and she a lady bred and born fastidious, elegant, accomplished, reared in luxury, heard poor laborers' wives warn their children to beware of the "drunken fellow."

She heard coarse laughs at his expense, and under the shadow of her shawl her cheek burnt hotly: but for all that she never thought of going back and leaving him to himself. As soon as she gained his side she called to him by name:

"Edward! Edward!"

He turned and stood unsteadily looking at her, in a bewildered way.

"You?" he said. "You ought to be at home this time of night."

"So ought we both," said Ruth. "Come dear."

He threw her hand off.

"I'm my own master," he said; "I'm not tied to any woman's apron string!" and staggered away, Ruth following, through the long streets, with every face turned toward them as they passed—some contemptuous, some terrified; out at last upon the wharves, and there the besotted man sat down more stupefied by the liquor he had swallowed, in that fresh, cold air. Ruth was thinly clad—the chill of the sea-blast seemed to reach her very heart. She thought of the babe at home and tears coursed down her cheeks. Again and again she plead with the mad man at her side.—Again and again she tried to bring to his mind some lingering memory of the past days when his love and protection had been hers. In vain; wild fancies filled his brain; demons born of fumes of rum, held possession of his senses. Sometimes he thrust her from him, sometimes he gave her a maudlin embrace and bade her bring him more liquor, but go home he would not.—The distant hum of the city died out at last; all was still with the strange stillness of a city night. The frosty stars twinkled over head. Now and then a night boat passed up the river, with measured beat and throb. Once a ruffianly looking fellow sauntered past them on the pier; but though he flung her an insolent word and a yet more insolent laugh, and went away singing yet more insolently, he did not approach them. So benumbed had Ruth grown, so cold to the very heart was she, that the power of motion had almost deserted her, when at last, as the church clock not far away tolled the hour of four, the degraded man staggered to his feet and reeled homeward. She followed feebly; only by clinging to the balustrade could she mount the wretched stairs. It was bitter cold within as without, but she was glad to find herself at last under shelter. Her babe still slumbered and she did not wake it.—Her frozen bosom could only have chilled the little creature. There were a few bits of broken wood in a corner, and with these she made a fire in the old stove, and crouched over, striving to gain some little warmth, while her husband slumbered heavily upon the bed in the corner, to which he had staggered on his entrance.

Thus an hour passed by, and Ruth also fell asleep. The silence, the pleasant warmth at her feet, the fancy that all her trouble was over for the night, lulled her to pleasant dreams. From them she was awakened by the loud ringing of the factory-bell and by the sound of cries and shouts in the streets below. She cast her eyes toward the bed,—her husband was not there! toward the cradle,—it was empty.—She flew to the window,—the street below was full of factory boys, with their tin kettles. Some great jest amused them mightily. They roared, they danced, the tossed their ragged caps on high, they shrieked in unmusical laughter; and the object of all this mad mirth was only too evident,—for on the steps of the liquor-store opposite stood Edward Holly, holding his child in his arms, and exhibiting for the benefit of the delighted crowd all those antics of which an intoxicated man alone is capable! He called on the grinning master of the gin cellar to "give this child some brandy;" and turned the screaming infant about in a manner that left no doubt that he would end by dropping it upon the broken pavement.

Wild with terror, Ruth rushed out into the street, and made her way through the crowd to the spot where her husband stood; but, before she reached him, the scene had changed.

Some boy, more brutal than the rest, had thrown a handful of mud into Edward Holly's face; and he, reeling and blaspheming, [illegible] dashed forward to revenge the act.

The child had been flung away at the first step, but fortunately, had been caught by an old negress who, though a degraded creature herself, had enough of the woman remaining to save the infant from injury.

And now the whole horde of boys, beset the drunken man, pelting him with sticks and stones and decayed vegetables from the kennel, and revelling in the brutal delight with which such a scene always seems to inspire boys of the lower classes.

Ruth saw that her babe was safe and that her husband was in danger, and, forgetful of all else, flew toward him. She cared nothing for the jeers of the mob; before them all, she flung her arms about him, and interposed her beautiful person between him and his assailants. The head that had carried itself a little proudly in the presence of the highest of the land—that had seemed more queen-like than that of the empress herself, at the Court of France—that had awakened the envy of titled English woman while she dwelt among them—dropped itself low upon the bosom of the drunken wretch who was the jeer and scorn of a low mob; and only in love and pity, not in anger did she speak to him:

"Come home, Edward! they'll hurt you, my poor love! come home with me."

Mad as he was—filled with the demons of drink, to the exclusion of the soul God had given him—the soft, sweet voice, the fond touch of the white fingers, awakened some memory of the past in the man's breast.

"Go you home, girl!" he whispered; "I'll kill them! Don't fret. I'll kill 'em, and——"

"Come home, darling," she whispered again, and he stopped and gave her a kiss. At that the boys yelled derisively, and flung more mud and stones at them. One threw a stone—a heavy stone, sharp-pointed and jagged. Whether he even intended to strike the man is doubtful; but the missile flew fiercely through the air and crashed against the golden head of the devoted wife. A stream of blood gushed from the white temple and poured down upon the bosom where it dropped never to lift itself again—never, never more. Only with a quivering shudder of pain she felt for the face of the man who had sworn to love and cherish her, and had broken that vow so utterly hers had been so truly kept.

"Good-bye, Edward," she whispered. "I can't see you now—kiss me. Oh, be good to baby! Be good to baby!" and no word more.

The crowd was hushed to silence. The culprits slunk away in terror. A sobered man bent over the dead woman, whose hands had dropped away from his brest, and the love and truth and tenderness of her heart were all manifest to him in that terrible moment—manifest in vain, for repentance could not restore her to life, nor blot out the love which had crushed her heart through all those weary days of her sad married life.

"What is the matter here?" cried a voice, as a portly man forced his way through the crowd. "A woman hurt?" "A woman killed," said the policeman, "and that brute is the cause of all," and the gentleman bent forward and started back with a cry of anguish.

"It is Ruth!" he said. "My Ruth!" and fell back into the policeman's arms in a death like swoon. Forgiveness and repentance had come alike too late for poor Ruth Holly. Her father could give her nothing but a grave.

The child born amidst want and penury, nourished by a half starving mother, pined away and died in the luxurious home to which its grandfather bore it; and now as the old man sits alone in his splendid home, he sometimes hears a strange, wild cry in the street outside, through which a drunken creature reels and staggers, howling ever and anon, "Ruth! Ruth! Ruth!"

It is Edward Holly, who ever, in his drunken madness, searches for his murdered wife. It is the pitiful, horrible, heart-breaking wreck of the once splendid, beautiful man of talent, who had only ONE FAULT.

A MIRACLE OF HONESTY.—At a party one evening, several contending for the honor of having done the most extraordinary thing, a reverend gentleman was appointed sole judge of their respective pretentions.

One produced his tailor's bill, with a receipt attached to it. A buzz went through the room that this could not be outdone, when a second proved that he had just arrested his tailor for money lent to him.

"The palm is his," was the generous cry, when a third put in his claim.

"Gentleman," he said, "I cannot boast of the feats of my predecessors, but I have returned to the owners two umbrellas that they left at my house."

"I'll hear no more," cried the astonished arbitrator. "This is the very acme of honesty; it is an act of virtue of which I never knew any one capable. The prize—"

"Hold," cried another, "I have done still more than that."

"Impossible," cried the whole company.

"Let us hear."

"I have been taking my paper for twenty years and paid for it every year in advance."

He took the prize.

PRETTY solid sense to wit: never study to be diverting without being useful; let no jest intrude upon your good manners, nor say anything that may offend modesty or heedlessly hurt the feelings of another.

"I SAY, Jim, what mechanical work did you do first," asked one darkey of another.

"Why, cut teeth, oh course," replied the other instantly.

THE MONKEY AND THE HAWK.

The cook of a French nobleman, whose chateau is in the south of France, had a monkey which was allowed the free range of the kitchen, and which was so intelligent that by severe training its natural propensity to mischief had been subdued, and it was even taught to perform certain useful services, such as plucking fowls for instance, at which it was uncommonly expert. One fine morning a pair of partridges were given it to pluck. The monkey took them to an open window of the kitchen, which looked directly upon the park, and went to work with great diligence. He soon finished one, which he laid on the outer ledge of the window, and then went quietly on with the other. A hawk, which had been watching his proceedings from a neighboring tree, darted down upon the plucked partridge, and in a minute was up in the tree again, greedily devouring his prey.

The consternation of the monkey at this untoward adventure may be imagined. He knew he should be severely whipped for losing it. He hopped about in great distress for some minutes, when suddenly a bright thought struck him. Seizing the remaining partridge, he went to work with great energy and stripped off the feathers. He then laid it on the ledge where he had placed the other, and closing one of the shutters, concealed himself behind it. The hawk, which by this time had finished his meal very soon swooped down upon the partridge; but hardly had his claws touched the bird, when the monkey sprung upon him from behind the shutter. The hawk's head was instantly wrung, and the monkey with a triumphant chuckle proceeded to strip off the feathers.

This done he carried the two fowls to his master, with a confident and self-satisfied air, which to say, "Here are two birds, sir—just what you gave me."

What the cook said on finding one of the partridges converted into a hawk is more than we are able to tell.

BEN. FRANKLIN AND THE PHILADELPHIA MERCHANTS.—When Ben. Franklin was a printer in Philadelphia, it seems he published a newspaper. Among other things that received censure at his hands were certain modes of transacting business by the merchants of Philadelphia. He handled the knaves in such a manner as to arouse their wrath, and calling a meeting among themselves, they waited upon the sturdy printer, and demanded to know what he meant.

"Here," said they, "we have been patronizing and supporting you, and this is our reward. You must change this mode of doing or we'll show you that the merchants are a power you may not trifle with. Without our patronage where would you stand?"

"Gentlemen of the Merchants' Committee," said the polite printer, "I, am as you see, very busy now, but call at my house this evening for dinner, I shall consider the matter over with you in a friendly manner." The committee congratulated themselves that old Ben was evidently frightened, came to the dinner at the hour named, but were surprised to find nothing on the table but mush—made from ill ground corn—and a pitcher of milk. The merchants' committee not being used to coarse fare, could do nothing but watch the healthy printer while he made a hearty meal. Rising from the table he addressed the committee thus:—"Gentlemen, he who can live comfortably on such food can live without your patronage. I shall cease to attack those practices when you cease to practice them, and not before. Gentlemen, good night."

And for many a year Philadelphia merchants were better and far more honest, owing to this incident.

WE cut the following anecdote of General Hancock, from the history of the 140th regiment, published in one of our exchanges. The author speaking of the scarcity of rations, says:

They were scarce with us—so much so that some boys bought of other regiments. During this scarcity, Blake happened to be on guard at Hancock's headquarters. He was pacing his beat very industriously in front of the General's tent, about daylight, when the General rolled out of bed and came to the door.

"Soldier, are you from the 140th?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is it true rations are scarce?"

"Yes, sir."

"You haven't enough?"

"No, sir."

"How many have you? Half enough?"

"I think so, sir."

"Well, it's a mighty poor soldier who can't steal the other half." With the last remark he went to bed again, while Blake renewed his labors.

Before long the cook began preparing breakfast. One thing after another was put on the table in the mess tent, and finally a plate of hot biscuit. While the cook returned to the kitchen Blake stepped up, emptied them into his haversack, and resumed his walk. Breakfast was announced, and the General went in. He had not been there long before he called the cook to bring some bread. The cook told him he had put hot cakes on the table. Some conversation passed between them, and the General stepping to the door, watched Blake very closely. Blake walked his beat apparently unconscious of any one being within a mile. Finally the General called a corporal, relieved Blake and sent him to his quarters. He had twenty-eight biscuit in his haversack.

PRIZE YOUR MOTHER.—"I have discovered (said Gray, the poet, in a letter to a young friend) a thing very little known, which is, that in one's life one can never have more than one mother. You may think this obvious, and what you may call a trite observation. You are a green gosling! I was, at the same age, very near as wise as you, and yet I never discovered this—with full evidence and conviction, I mean—till it was too late. It is thirteen years ago, and it seems to me but as yesterday, and every day I live it sinks deeper in my heart!"

THE following anecdote of President Lincoln is characteristic: A Mrs. M——, of this city, once called on him in Washington to introduce a young lady who had been instrumental in transporting the United States mails through rebel territory during the war. The lady was rather small; and when Mrs. M—— introduced her to Mr. Lincoln as "the young lady who carried the mails across the Potomac at Winchester," he half took her up in his arms with the laughing remark: "Carried the males, did she? But who carried the females?"

A REVEREND gentleman horrified a small company a few evenings since by telling them that he and his wife had separated.

"Not parted?" inquiringly asked three or four.

"Yes," said the gentleman, with a sigh: "we had some words, and parted."

A shudder passed round the room, when some one inquired:

"For good?"

"Oh no!" replied "the divine, she has only gone to Philadelphia, and will be back in a day or two."

A COUNTRY apothecary, not a little distinguished for his impudence, in the hope of disconcerting a young clergyman whom he knew to be a man of singular modesty, asked him in the hearing of a large company at a public assembly: "Why did the Patriarchs of old live to such an extreme age?" "I suppose the ancient Patriarchs took no physic!" was the prompt reply.

IF you go into a store and find the proprietor lying on the counter, asleep, you may bet your boots he don't advertise.

The Star & Sentinel.

Friday, Mar. 5, 1869.

Advertisers and others interested will bear in mind that the regular circulation of the "STAR AND SENTINEL" is much larger than that of any other paper published in the County, being read weekly by not less than 11,000 persons.

THE N. Y. Herald considers the departure of Andy Johnson from the White House the death of the whisky rings.

THE Spring Elections have been abolished in the counties of Dauphin and Lebanon by special acts of the Legislature just passed. In those counties local officers will hereafter be chosen in October—making but one Election each year.

A BILL has passed the House of Representatives providing for the coinage of nickle-copper pieces of five cents and under. It provides for the coinage of one, three and five cent pieces, and makes them a legal tender to the amount of one dollar.

GENERAL GRANT'S Administration is ushered in under the most auspicious of omens—the rise of our bonds at home and in the foreign market.—Now that we are to have a President who talks for and not against our credit, we may expect our high interest-bearing securities to stride forward at a rate unprecedented in financial history.

RECENTLY, in a libel suit against an editor of a Cincinnati paper, the Court very sensibly charged the jury that the publication of a false statement by a paper in the ordinary course of its business as a publisher of news, is not prima facie evidence of malace as by the old rule. The falsehood and malice must be proven by the complainant.

THE passing of Gen. Schenck's bill pledging the faith of the nation for the payment of the public debt in gold has had a marked effect upon the quotations of American securities aboard. Our bonds immediately advanced in the London market about 1½ per cent. while in New York and Philadelphia there was an advance of 1⅛ in the 5-20s of 1862, and ¾ in other Government securities.

IT is said one of General GRANT'S first orders will send Phil. Sheridan to New Orleans, General Sickles to Charleston, and General Reynolds to Texas, from which positions Johnson removed them. This as an intimation from the new Administration that the reign of Ku-kluxism is to come to an end, and that loyal men are to be protected by the Government in the enjoyment of all their legal rights.

THE House of Representatives, on Saturday, disposed of the Louisiana contested case by laying it on the table. A novel scene took place during the discussion. Menard, (colored) who is one of the contestants, spoke in his own behalf. The House listened intently with much curiosity. Menard, who is a good looking man of middle height, with a brown skin and wavy hair, spoke calmly and distinctly without excitement. This is the first time a colored man has spoken in the House.

OUR colleague, Hon. EDWARD MCPHERSON, has received another and exceedingly complimentary recognition of his ability and fidelity in his nomination for re-election as Clerk to the 41st Congress. This will make Mr. MCPHERSON'S fourth term—a compliment, we believe, never accorded to any previous Clerk. It is a full answer to the mean attacks upon his personal integrity made by reckless partizans last fall, and a marked attestation of the integrity and ability with which the duties of his responsible office have been discharged.

SENATOR ERRETT, of Allegheny county, from the special Legislative Committee, last week reported a new Registry bill, a copy of which is before us. It seems to be carefully framed to obviate the objections of the Supreme Court, and to guard the integrity of the ballot-box. It also contains a section changing the township elections from Spring to the second Tuesday of October. If the Republicans of the Legislature do their duty this bill, or one with its essential provisions, will be enacted into law.

UP to the hour of going to press, we have received nothing from Washington in regard to the Inauguration ceremonies. It was undoubtedly a grand demonstration, as the various lines of railroads leading to the capital have been taxed to their utmost capacity, for days, to carry persons thronging to Washington. Besides the military, political and civic associations, it was thought the crowd would be largely in excess of any previous inauguration.—Gen. GRANT'S inaugural would doubtless be terse and brief. To-day he will send to the Senate his Cabinet appointments.

AN important bill, desired to vindicate the national faith and promote confidence in the national securities, reported by Mr. Schenck, of Ohio, passed the House by a decided vote last week, and on Saturday the Senate passed the bill with some slight amendments. The following is the form in which it passed the Senate:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in order to remove any doubt as to the purpose of Government to discharge all just obligations to the public creditors, and to settle conflicting questions and interpretations of the laws by virtue of which such obligations have been contracted, it is hereby provided and declared that the faith of the United States is solemnly pledged to the payment in coin, or its equivalent, of all the obligations of the United States, except in cases where the law authorizing the issue of any such obligation has expressly provided that the same may be paid in lawful money, or other currency than gold and silver.

SECTION 2. And be it further enacted, That any contract hereafter made specifically payable in coin, and the consideration of which may be a loan of coin, or a sale of property, or the rendering of labor or service of any kind, the price of which as carried into the contract, may have been adjusted, on the basis of the coin value thereof at the time of such sale or the rendering of such service or labor, shall be legal and valid, and may be enforced according to its terms.

The United States Bonds have been steadily advancing in the European markets, as Johnson's policy dies out. On Saturday the Five-Twenty Bonds reached 88 on the London Stock exchange, being about 90 in gold, allowing for difference in exchange. This price—a much higher than ever before reached for our bonds abroad—is due to the confidence that is felt in the incoming Administration, doubtless strengthened by the passage through Congress of Mr. Schenck's bill, the first practical measure yet adopted for placing the credit of the country on a proper foundation.

TOWNSHIP OFFICERS.

On the 19th of March will be held in this county what are known as the Spring Elections, at which time the various township offices are to be filled. We would here proffer a word of advice to our Republican friends in regard to these offices. It is this.—Make it a point to elect the best men that can be found for the position.—Especially let the selections for Judges and Inspectors of Election be men of acknowledged fidelity and fearlessness, who will aim to preserve the purity of the ballot-box. We hope to obtain from the present Legislature a stringent Registry Law. The next step is for the people to select Election officers who will see that its provisions are fairly and honestly enforced. Even in acknowledged Democratic districts, the election of a wide-awake fearless Republican Inspector is of great importance. Republicans of Adams, next fall we will be called on to elect a Governor. See to it that you keep your organization unbroken, and don't neglect the coming township elections.

THE SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT.

The Fortieth Congress fittingly closes up its business by giving to the country another of the great measures by which our national legislation since the Rebellion has been distinguished—a corollary to the Emancipation Proclamation, the Civil Rights Bill, and the Abolition of Slavery by Constitutional amendment. We refer to the proposed Amendment to the Constitution to secure Manhood Suffrage. As finally agreed upon by a Committee of Conference, it reads as follows:

ARTICLE XV. The right of the citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States, or by any State, on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

Section 2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

The amendment in this form was agreed to on Thursday by the House of Representatives—yeas 143, nays 43, more than three to one. On Friday it was also adopted by the Senate, the yeas being 39 and the nays 13—just three to one.

The amendment will now go to the Legislatures of the several States for their action. We fully believe that it will be ratified, so that the long and weary controversy on the subject will be finally and peacefully terminated.—Of course, the Democracy will resist it, and make a terrible ado over the "nigger," being their last chance at capital in this line. But we have faith in the intelligence and honest purpose of the mass of the American people, and look forward to an early ratification of this amendment by the States, as another of the fruits of the Slaveholder's Rebellion, and as forever putting to rest the negro question as a disturbing element in national politics.

Twenty-eight States are needed to ratify the Amendment. The following States will, there is good reason to believe, endorse the Amendment promptly and speedily:

Maine,	Illinois,
New Hampshire,	Kansas,
Vermont,	Arkansas,
Massachusetts,	Florida,
Connecticut,	Louisiana,
Missouri,	Michigan,
Tennessee,	Wisconsin,
North Carolina,	Iowa,
Alabama,	Minnesota,
Rhode Island,	Nebraska,
New York,	Nevada,
Pennsylvania,	West Virginia,
Indiana,	S. Carolina—26.

Two more States will be needed.—Maryland, Delaware and Kentucky will of course vote against the amendment. But there remain California, Georgia, New Jersey, Ohio, Oregon, and the un-reconstructed States of Virginia, Mississippi, and Texas, from which to secure the additional two.

THE despatches from Washington during the past week, bearing on the probable material of Gen. GRANT'S Cabinet, have been very conflicting.—As the difficulty will be officially solved before our paper reaches our readers, a republication of these conjectures and surmises would be useless.—Col. McClure, of this State, had an interview with Gen. GRANT during the week, urging the policy of selecting distinctive, working Republicans for his Cabinet. As there has been much misrepresentation as to what transpired at this interview, in justice both to the President elect and Col. McClure we publish Col. McClure's card addressed to the Philadelphia BULLETIN:

A CARD.

"To the Editor of the Evening Bulletin: Quite an undue importance has been given to a very brief and entirely cordial interview I had with General Grant recently, and it has been exaggerated to do great injustice to all parties involved.

"Some journals herald it is as the beginning of a rupture between General Grant and his party. Not a word was uttered by either of us in any other than the kindest manner, nor was there the remotest intimation of his possible alienation from the Republican party.

"Other journals have censured me for obtruding myself upon General Grant, and attempting a factious dictation as to his appointments. Such reflections are wholly unjust. I called upon him to present a letter from Hon. John M. Read, with which General Grant was evidently impressed, and it led to a brief conversation on the Cabinet. It was perfectly frank on both sides and free from the shadow of offence. Respectful suggestions were made, and as respectfully heard and considered; as to the political policy of the new administration, and the question of faction, either in Pennsylvania or elsewhere, they were not discussed or even proposed.

"I earnestly urged upon General Grant the policy of selecting representative Republican politicians for his Cabinet. I did so because intelligent and representative politicians only can make a successful ministry in any government where the people make and unmake every department of power. I urged no man for the Cabinet; I had a preference and expressed it on a former occasion; but had never assumed that even a party, much less an humble individual, had a right to insist upon any particular man as one of the confidential advisers of the President.

"I was informed that Governor Geary had written, or would write, a letter to General Grant on the subject of his Cabinet. I stated that fact to General Grant, to which he replied that he had not heard from Governor Geary. I did not feel at liberty to assure General Grant that such a letter would be received, as there was nothing but Governor Geary's promise to warrant the belief that he would recommend a particular gentleman for a Cabinet office from Pennsylvania.

A. K. MCCLURE."

Philadelphia, Feb. 27, 1869.

THE Legislature has adjourned over for a week to enable the members to attend the inauguration ceremonies at Washington. We see it stated that a Legislative excursion to Gettysburg, to visit the Battle-field, under the care of Col. Batchelder, is on the programme. We shall be glad to welcome our law-makers to Gettysburg, but really we think it high time that these frequent adjournments and excursions should come to an end, and that the Legislature should address itself to its legitimate duties, that of making laws. This thing of furnishing Government officials with free passes over all the lines of travel presents constant temptations to neglect duty and spend the winter in pleasure seeking.

THE first session of the Forty-first Congress is expected to last until the middle of May.

WALLACE, the chairman of the Democratic State Committee, is undoubtedly a great man—on paper. We humbly suggest, however, that his manifesto's will, by their frequency, perhaps lose their usefulness, with his followers at least. The following circular has been confidentially distributed among his marshals, and, in a mild and subdued manner, is suggestive of the "coffee" aroma, which has so inevitably accompanied his political efforts.

HARRISBURG, PA.,
February 1, 1869.

DEAR SIR:—Do not neglect the Spring Elections. We must secure our fair proportion of election officers in every locality.

Judges, Inspectors and Assessors are very important officers, and if attention be given to the matter, we can elect more than one-half of them in the State.

Arouse our friends to the necessity of doing this. Elect men of nerve and will to these places. It is a great error to select weak men. The Radicals last fall by unscrupulous use of their election officers, rejected more loyal votes than they had majority in October—This must not be permitted again. The way to prevent it is to see that we have firm men on the board, and that we have our full share everywhere.

Let us invoke you to give this subject your earnest attention. Very respectfully yours.

WILLIAM A. WALLACE,
Chairman.

There is some richness in the above, especially when we view it in the light thrown by Investigating Committees, on the action of Democratic Election Boards, at the elections last fall. Scandalous and disgraceful as was the way in which the Republican majority in Philadelphia was overcome, this may well be but the prelude to a grander flight. The late developments which show that New York was carried for the Democracy in last November by the casting of some sixty thousand illegal votes, has, perhaps, put their Pennsylvania brethren on their mettle. Let our friends be warned and see that no township officers are lost by their supineness and inactivity.

THE State of Kansas has the honor of being the first to ratify the new Suffrage Amendment. A telegram from Topeka, says that the Constitutional Amendment on Monday passed the Senate unanimously, and the House by a vote of 64 to 7.

NEWS OF NEIGHBORING COUNTIES.

BEDFORD.—The Republicans of Bedford Borough voted last week, to test the strength of the candidates for the Postoffice, resulting—A. L. Russell 171, John Arnold 34, and John Minnich 11.

CUMBERLAND.—A hearing was had last week on habeas corpus, in the case of Dr. Schoeppe, charged with administering poison to Miss Steinecke; but the Court refused to admit the defendant to bail. He was remanded to prison to await trial at April term.—The barn of Mr. McCormick, 1½ miles from Hagerstown, was destroyed by fire on the 18th ult., Mr. Ellinger, the tenant, lost 3 colts, 2 horses, 7 or 8 cattle, hogs, wheat, and corn, worth over $1500.—Mrs. Watts, the mother of Hon. Frederick Watts, died in Carlisle, on Saturday evening, Feb. 20th, in the 90th year of her age.—The barn of Daniel McCoy, Newburry, was destroyed by fire on the 22d ult.

FREDERICK.—John Wilcoxon has purchased the United States Hotel for $8,025.—James Grimes, a laboring man, was killed on the 23d ult., on the Buckeystown road, near Frederick, by a large rock weighing five tons falling on him, while at work.

FRANKLIN.—The expenditures for the Franklin County Poor House for the year 1868 amounted to $13,477 42, being $1,953,-09 less than the expenses the year previous.—Samuel Seibert has sold his dwelling in Chambersburg, on Second Street, for $7,500 to the Episcopal Congregation of that place, as a church site.—Wm. Jones, one of the men implicated in the robberry of Fallen's store, Mercersburg, on the 17th of December, has turned States evidence, implicating Seyler and Saly in the robberry.—At a sale of Peter McFarsen's stock, Guilford township, a Chester white Sow with eight pigs brought $103.

WASHINGTON.—Mr. Solomon Snyder, residing near Hagerstown, lost a little son 5 years old, with an attack of Lock Jaw. He had hurt his head some ten days previous.

YORK.—Last Monday a week George Zorger, aged 26, of Newburry township, was killed in a deep stone quarry, near York Haven. Two large rocks, hanging a number of feet above him, suddenly tumbled down, and sunk Zorger so deep into the soft ground upon which he had been standing, that his head and part of his body were entirely buried. The larger stone is supposed to have weighed fifteen tons; and the other, which fell upon him, was also of immense weight, but much lighter. It required the strength of some twenty men to roll the rocks away. So completely was the victim crushed and buried, that nothing but one of his limbs could be seen.—Adam McKinney, of Hanover, last Sunday evening accidentally cut his right hand with a butcher knife, inflicting a severe wound.—A gentleman named Laugerman, residing on the McSherrystown road, near Hanover, had his foot badly injured by a wagon passing over it on Wednesday afternoon. His team became unmanageable while on the Common, near the depot, and in endeavoring to manage the horses he was thrown under the wagon and his foot badly crushed.

THE new Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church, in Washington, was dedicated last week. The edifice is of brown stone, in the Gothic style of architecture, elegantly decorated, and is, perhaps, with the galleries, capable of seating a larger number of auditors than any other church building in the city. Among those present were General Grant and family, including his father; Speaker Colfax and wife, Chief Justice Chase, and many Senators and Representatives in Congress. Thus far $220,000 have been expended on the building, leaving a debt of $25,000. General Grant is one of the trustees.

General Sherman was yesterday the recipient of the deeds and papers making him the owner of the private residence and furniture of General Grant at Washington. Mr. A. T. Stewart, of New York, made the presentation speech, to which General Sherman happily responded, assuring the contributors that their present ($100,000 in all) should be held by him for the special benefit of his family and in the education of his children, and beyond this purpose he intended never to touch for himself one dollar of it.

GENERAL Sheridan, since the close of the Indian War, is bending his energies to weeding out desperate and lawless white men from the Indian Territory. In the latter part of January he issued an order sending beyond the limits of the territory Dr. Holmes, Don Carlos and S. T. Wakeley, formerly Indian agents, for inducing Indians to steal cattle.

ADDITIONAL reports of a fresh outbreak of hostilities on the plains are received. The war seems fiercest in Arizona, where several engagements have recently taken place. The Apaches are particularly unruly. Little Raven and three hundred Arapahoes had surrendered to the authorities.

A number of balls entered private residences and wounded citizens, while some were also wounded while in the street.

The Chicago Tribune has the following from its Washington correspondent: There is a social evil reviving about the Capitol which it is time to rebuke. Long files of cyprians are in the habit of rendezvouing there and parading between the House and Senate, and in the lobbies thereof, calling out members, making assignations for the future and loans for the past, and so completely signalizing the place that it is at her peril that a good woman walks alone in the Capitol.

OBSERVANCE OF SABBATH.—When that great political economist Adam Smith, author of the "Wealth of Nations," and certainly clear of religious bias, was shown a manuscript attacking Sabbath observance, he said to his friend, "Put it behind the fire, if the common notion of the sacredness of the day secures to the working-classes, week by week, a period of repose and rest, the Sunday, even as a civil institution, is an invaluable blessing."

The labor of the prisoners thus paid more than half the expenses, and they were protected from the effects of idleness and promiscuous association.

ONE of those very simple improvements in the construction of a long known article, has recently been announced in England, in regard to the gumming of envelopes, consisting in applying the mucilage to the lower part of the envelope instead of the flap. HONORS TO REBELS.

Opening of a New Confederate Campaign in New York.

The "Manhattan Club," of New York, noted as one of the most aristocratic 'Democratic' institutions in the country—whose members controlled the action of the last Democratic National Convention—gave a magnificent dinner on the evening of the 22d, to the arch-traitor, John C. Breckinridge, and a number of the Ex-Rebel officers. The Hon. Agaste Belmont, Chairman of the National Democratic Committee, presided, and was assisted in doing the honors by Judge Cardozo, Manton Marble, Editor of the World, and others. Among the guests were Lieut.-Gen. Beauregard, Gen. Magruder, Gen. Roger, A. Pryor, Gen. Pickett, and other distinguished Democratic "Heroes" who drew their swords against the old flag. "Lieut. Gen. John C. Breckinridge," as he was called, was the special hero of the occasion. In a discription of the affair by a New York paper, we are told:

"Gen. Breckinridge arrived about half-past seven. As the distinguished guest entered the parlor the hum of conversation ceased, and all eyes were turned upon him. The General was dressed in evening costume, and wore diamond studs. He is about six feet one inch in hight, and is well proportioned. His hair is turned gray, and he has a gray moustache, somewhat heavier than that worn by the Hon. Fernando Wood. His eye, however, has lost none of its latent fire, and his manner was polished and refined to the last degree. The ploughshare of time has left but few furrows on his face, which indicated perfect health. After courteously saluting his friends, he sat down on a sofa by the side of Gen. Beauregard, and a few minutes were spent in earnest conversation, which was occasionally interrupted by the introduction of prominent members of the Club to Gen. Breckinridge."

THE CLOTH IS REMOVED.

At 11 P. M. the cloth was removed, and the Chairman announced the first toast of the evening, "His Excellency the President of the United States," which was quaffed in silence. The second toast was, "The Health of Lieut. Gen. John C. Breckinridge, our honored and distinguished guest." In presenting this toast the Chairman recounted the past services of Gen. Breckinridge as a Democratic chieftain, and paid a high tribute to his honor as a gentleman. A delicate reference was made to his skill and bravery in the Confederacy, and the dignity marking his conduct since his exile.

SPEECH OF GEN. BRECKINRIDGE.

As Gen. Breckinridge arose, he was greeted with rounds of applause. He briefly returned his thanks, and resumed his seat without touching on political topics. In private conversation, however, the General gave an amusing account of his hardships in the wilds of Florida, while escaping from the ruins of the fallen Confederacy. He spoke feelingly of the sufferings of President Davis, and told an interesting story of his first meeting with Mr. Davis in Europe while at the house of Mr. Erlanger, in Paris. The General, in answer to inquiries, said that Mr. Slidell still remained in the French capital, and had expressed no intention of returning to Louisiana. He had not seen Mr. James M. Mason for several months. Mr. Judah P. Benjaman he thought was coining money at the English bar. An injudicious remark was made in reference to the reported intention of the Kentucky Democracy to nominate General Breckinridge as their candidate for Governor. The General smiled, and drew his cigar from between his teeth. "I hope my friends in Kentucky will do nothing of the kind," said he, "as I think it would be injudicious, and I have no desire to re-enter political life."

Gen. Magruder was next toasted and each of the Confederate heroes in turn, all of whom made speeches. The Manhattan Club was in a blaze of glory. It has not been so happy since Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania, before the battle of Gettysburg, when the "distinguished guest" anticipated a sure and certain triumph, and boasted that they would dictate terms of peace at the head of their legions, in that staunchly rebel stronghold—the city of New York.

COIN CONTRACTS—PACIFIC RAILROAD BONDS.

It is generally known that by covenant between the financial officers of the Union Pacific Railroad Company and the Trustees of the First Mortgage Bondholders, these bonds were made payable, principal and interest, in gold. The United States Supreme Court has just decided the validity of contracts made payable in gold coin. This decision of the highest national tribunal establishes beyond question or doubt the manner and terms upon which the Union Pacific Railroad Company must inevitably pay both principal and interest of their First Mortgage Bonds.

These bonds are a First Mortgage upon the longest railroad in the world, and in amount do not exceed the sum of $27,000 per mile, while the earnings upon the portion of the road in operation last year averaged more than $7,000 per mile. And when the entire line shall be opened, as it will be in the early Summer, to the trade and travel to the Pacific, the earnings will be very largely increased. Experience has shown that the longest lines of railroad (other things being equal) are always the most profitable. The last year's earnings upon the New York Central, the New York and Erie, and the Pennsylvania Central are proof of this. The New York Central's earnings per mile were $24,251, the New York and Erie, $25,811, and the Pennsylvania road, $47,475. The Union Pacific is a much longer railroad. Let its annual earnings per mile reach the average on these roads—say $32,512—and the result on eleven hundred miles of road will be $35,-763,200 in the year.

Such facts as these have made Union Pacific Bonds the most popular securities in the market; and the sales are now so active that parties who desire to invest will do well to make their subscriptions at once.

ASSASSINATION BY AIR GUNS.

The numerous instances of finding men prone upon the most public streets of the Eastern cities, injured as by a bullet, although neither the victim nor any other person had heard the discharge of any firearm, so far as could be ascertained, has suggested the idea that air-guns have been brought into requisition. According to the authorities, this is a weapon "resembling a musket, for the purpose of discharging missiles by means of compressed air. It consists of lock, stock, barrel, and ramrod. The stock is made hollow, and provided with proper cocks for filling it with compressed air by means of a force pump.—Each lock is nothing but a valve which lets into the barrel a portion of the air compressed in the stock, when the trigger is pulled. The gun is loaded with wadding and ball in the ordinary way, and the air suddenly introduced from the stock propels it with a velocity proportional to the square root of the degree of the compression of the air."

By this weapon a person may be killed at a distance of sixty or eighty yards. Later improvements give it a propelling force almost equal to the old-fashioned musket. Its chief advantage to criminals is its noiseless discharge. The victim may be singled out in a crowd by a person standing concealed at an upper window, and, if the aim is accurate, perforated by a bullet, without any chances of detection, excepting those indicated by angles and direction. Indeed, the body might fall in such a manner as to indicate conditions entirely different from those which are real. Whether or not this theory is correct, it is evident that the ingenuity of crime keeps pace with the ingenuity of the most approved detective methods.—Chicago Republican.

A MAN in Des Moines, Iowa, has erected a dwelling house for himself built mostly of paper. The weather-boarding, inside walls, and shingling are of that material known in the West as the "Rock River Company's Building Paper." The cost is about two-thirds that of the ordinary materials, and the house, it is said, is much warmer than where plaster and wood are used.

THE BENDERSVILLE RAILROAD.

An adjourned meeting of the friends of the proposed Bendersville R. R., was held at Bendersville on Saturday, Feb. 27th which was well attended.

After having received sufficient subscriptions to pay all expenses incurred, a report was read from the committee recently appointed to confer with other roads, which was listened to with much interest.

As the successful action of this committee was very necessary to a favorable issue of this road, we append an epitome of the report.

We called upon Messrs. Given, Cathcart and Henderson, at Carlisle, stockholders and officers of the Cumberland Valley and Pine Grove R. R., but learned from them only that if aid was received from that source we must apply to the Penna. Central R. R., as the latter held the largest proportion of their stock, and the ballance of power was virtually in their hands. The Committee then called upon Edgar Thompson, President of the Penna. R. R., who received us cordially, and upon making our business known, showed us a great deal of attention, examining our draft and report carefully—stating, however, that Mr. Gitt, Civil engineer's, estimate for excavations was too low. He informed us that they owned the N. C. R. R., also, and that freight going either to Phil'a. or Baltimore must necessarily pass on their road. He went on to say that if our road was graded and presented to them they would finish it and run it.

The Committee further stated that Judge Watts had informed them that his views upon the projected road had been written to Mr. Gitt, but the immediate purport of this information was not communicated to the meeting.

The thanks of all men voted to the Committee for a faithful performance of duty.

Views of interest were submitted to the meeting by different persons, and though the present financial stagnation of our community and country generally operate against us, all are sanguine that with the promised assistance from abroad the road will be brought to an actual beginning ere long. Mr Gitt's report of survey is enclosed.

Mr. Gitt is sanguine of success, and is in correspondence with other railroad men.—A meeting is again called for Saturday, March 13th, which will be well attended, when further business of importance will be developed.

By order

MR. GITT'S REPORT.

NEW OXFORD, FEB. 4, 1869.

TO ISAAC BENDER, ESQ.,
President Bendersville R. R.

DEAR SIR:—In accordance with previous arrangements, at a meeting of the citizens of Bendersville, and the surrounding country, and with your instruction, I was requested to make a preliminary survey for a Branch Railroad from your town, to the South Mountain Railroad, now being built from Carlisle to Pine Grove, this has been performed, and I have the honor to submit the following report.

The survey was begun at sta. 574, near a bench mark, on a pin oak tree, of the South Mountain Railroad Survey, near Royer's Saw Mill. It then proceeds in an easterly direction, up Tagg's run, over very favorable ground, requiring scarcely any grading, with uniformly ascending grades, though heavy, on an average of 75 feet per mile, passing Zinn's Saw Mill, and crossing Tagg's run a number of times, yet it will only be necessary to build one bridge, with a span of 20 feet: the road can be kept on either side.

Continuing our line up the ravine, crossing the Summit at 4½ miles: there being but a small depression in the mountain, the cut will necessarily be heavy—crossing it at an elevation of 416 feet above our starting point. I think that there is another route by which we might reach the summit of this ridge at a lower depression, but it is doubtful whether the line would prove to be much more favorable than that which we selected, but still it is worthy of further examination, before a final location is made.

From the summit, we pass down a ravine, following what is called Sower's run, with a somewhat heavier grade for several miles—85 feet per mile, then the route may be described as very favorable, and the latter half of it extremely so, requiring but little work of any kind. The country is not unfavorable, but to reduce the grades, it will require much care and labor in making a proper and judicious location.

At 7½ miles we reach the North end of the village, crossing very few branches requiring culverts, and no bridges except Possum creek, with a span of 75 feet, and two others—in all, but three bridges.

After finishing the survey to the forks of the road at Cook's, we ran a line from near Possum creek to near the centre of the town, passing Rice's and crossing a high ridge back of town, which is 69 feet higher than the point at Cook's, and 59 feet lower than the summit at Rice's. The mountain summit is 332 feet higher than the street in Bendersville, in front of the hotels. Possum creek is 360 feet lower than the summit.

I refer you to the accompanying map and profile for more minute information, and will show that your road will be a cheap one to construct, except the summit cut, the ground favorable, of easy excavation, as there is no rock or hard pan to be encountered. There will be but few culverts, generally small, and three wooden bridges of from 20 to 75 feet opening. I am of opinion that but little solid rock, if any, will be met in the summit excavation; for the reason that this semi valley has been the recipient of the washings of the mountain for the ages it has stood.

COST OF ROAD.

335641 Cubic yards of earth excavated, at 25 cents	$83,910 25
140 Cubic yards of Rectangular drains, at $3	420 00
190 Cubic yards of Rectangular Bridge Masonry, at $6	1,140 00
Bridge Superstructure	1,250 00
Equal to $11,562 70 per mile, Grading and Bridging	$86,720 25
585 tons Rails, 50 lbs. per yard, at $80 per ton	$46,800 00
429 chairs per mile, 7½ miles, at 40 cents each	1,287 06
3456 lbs. spikes per mile, 7½ miles, at 5 cents per lb	1,299 75
2600 ties per mile, 7½ miles, at 40 cents each	7,800 00
Track laying at $400 per mile	3,000 00
Equal to $8,024 90 per mile	$60,186 75
Grading and bridging	86,720 25
Equal to $19,587 60 per mile—total	$146,907 00

From the above estimates you will observe that the grading will cost $11,562,70 per mile, and if it was not for the summit cut, it would only cost $6,248,40 per mile, as the summit cut exceeds all the other work by 250,000 cubic yards.

The iron rails, chairs, spikes, ties and laying track, only costs $8,024,90 per mile, and the total cost per mile, all complete, as above, $19,587,60 making the total cost of road, $146,907. This is much higher than I anticipated it would be, but all owing to the long summit cut, which is over a mile in length and 55 feet the greatest depth. A tunnel of 800 feet in length would cost $55,000. As stated before, I think that a way could be had to reduce this cut at least one half.

The estimates contemplate only a single track with slopes of 1½ to 1, and is based on a width of road bed of 14 feet in cuttings and 12 feet on embankments. The line is pretty direct—7½ miles long with easy curves.

The soil of Menallen township is exceedingly fertile, and every description of grain, with proper culture, is produced in abundance. Your region seems to be admirably calculated for the cultivation of all the fruits produced in our country. You have valuable minerals, &c. The building of your road would therefore open a new era in the history of Menallen, and bring you into direct communication with the great commercial centres of the country, and every farmer who cultivates a one hundred acre farm, would be enabled to save $60 per annum on the cost of lime for manuring his land, not saying anything about, coal, produce, and many other advantages too numerous to mention.

Permit me therefore to congratulate you upon the step you have taken towards the construction of a railroad from your place to connect with the South Mountain road. With the best wishes for your success, and for your ever persevering efforts in all the matters you undertake,—you must succeed in this, and if so, you will receive the full reward to which you are so justly entitled,

I am respectfully, sir,
Your obedient servant,
JOS. S. GITT.
Civil Engineer.

NOTHING LIKE IT IN MEDICINE.

It has long been claimed that if we knew it, there would be an herb, or a combination of herbs, roots and barks that would cure all the ills human flesh is heir to. Dr. Mishler, with a few of his professional friends, have kept this idea constantly in view, and labored earnestly and perseveringly for years to find this most desirable treasure. Though they have not found an instant cure for all complaints, they have nevertheless discovered a remedy, which, as yet, has never failed in curing Chills and Fever, Dyspepsia, and all diseases arising from any impurity of the blood or disarrangement of the digestive organs, including Liver Complaint, Coughs, Colds, Sick Headache, Neuralgia, Nervousness, General Debility and all affections of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs.

This great discovery, in honor of the indefatigable labors of Dr. B. Mishler, is called Mishler's Herb Bitters, and wherever introduced takes the place of Quinine and the host of other remedies used heretofore for the complaints mentioned above.

IF you suffer with Headache try MARSHALL'S ELIXIR, and be convinced that although other remedies have failed to cure you, this will give you instant and permanent relief.

PALSY, DIMNESS OF SIGHT,

and other alarming nervous affections, then Marshall's Elixir, by giving tone and strength to your system, restores you to perfect health.

Whenever food which should be digested remains in the stomach, causing pain and uneasiness for the want of that principle which would render it easy of digestion, then by using Marshall's Elixir you will supply this deficiency and prevent its recurrence, and so be radically cured of Dyspepsia.

The stomach being thus cleansed from an unhealthy to a healthy condition, costiveness and the other attendant disorders of the bowels are of necessity prevented.

INSURANCE, P. O., BOX 1874,
Feb. 26.—1m Philadelphia, Pa.

The Star and Sentinel.

Gettysburg, Friday, Mar. 5, 1869.

Mr. C. H. STALLSMITH has commenced the erection of a handsome two-story house, aside of his present residence on East York street.

Mr. SAMMUEL HERBST has leased the Brickyard of Henry Dottarar, on the Emmittsburg road, and intends to commence the making of brick as soon as the weather permits.

ASSIGNEE'S SALE.—We are requested to state that in addition to the articles advertised to be sold on Tuesday next, by the assignee of Samuel Beecher, Butler township, there will be also sold a mare, and a Paper Drying Machine.

ARRESTED.—Detective JAMES ROUZER last week arrested a colored man named Smith, charged with having stolen Dr. Smith's mammoth bronze turkey several weeks ago, and had him committed. Dr. S., annoyed at the loss of the turkey, put the matter in Mr. Rouzer's hands, who worked up the case with his customary skill and persistence resulting in the detection of the thief.

ELECTION.—On Monday evening the annual election of officers of the Gettysburg Gas Company was held, resulting in the election of the following gentlemen:

President—E. G. Fahnestock.

Managers—A. D. Buehler, H. D. Wattles. W. A. Duncan, M. Eichelberger, J. B. Danner, S. R. Russell.

The amount of gas consumed during the year was 958,600 feet, being an excess of 57,900 over last year.

COMMITTED.—On Monday night as Mr. David Martin, of Conewago township, Adams county, returned home late in the evening he heard some noise about his hen-house, and perceived two men emerging from the same. He gave chase, but did not overtake them; but a hat and newspaper picked up by the owner of the chickens led to the arrest of a German residing in Hanover, named Altvater, who was committed by Squire Frysinger, and subsequently brought to Gettysburg by Sheriff HANN.

FRIGHTENED.—One night last week some horse thieves entered the stable belonging to Mt. St. Mary's College, near Emmittsburg, and took out the horses on the place, with a view of making the most of them, but, luckily, just as they were about to start, a stallion, which was among the number, "nickered" and woke the farmer, who, on looking out, saw what was going on, and hurrying out, gave the alarm. The thieves finding they were discovered and pursued, hastily dismounted and made good their escape across the fields and into the adjacent mountain.

ACCIDENTS.—Mrs. Mary Arendt, aged 82 years, living with her son John Arendt, on the Herr farm, back of the Springs Company property, made a misstep on Saturday night, the 20th ult., and dislocated her left ankle joint and fractured the long bone lying on the outside of the leg, making a frightful compound injury.—She is under the professional care of Dr. Eldordice, with Dr. O'Neal as consulting physician.

On Saturday evening, the 20th ult., David McGrew, about 22 years of age, residing in Cumberland township, whilst riding his horse to water with a halter, (the horse becoming unmanageable,) was thrown, and his collar bone fractured by the fall. Dr. O'Neal was sent for and gave the case proper surgical attention.—Compiler.

ADVERTISE.—Every business man that wants to increase his trade should advertise.

Advertising brings the merchant's goods to the constant notice of the customer.

Advertising enables the business man of small capital to turn his stock quickly and often.

Advertising enables the rich merchant to do business on less capital.

Advertising builds up trade rapidly, establishes a permanent trade, and keeps an old trade active.

Advertising makes fortunes for men in business who otherwise would fail in their undertakings.

Advertising should be constant and judicious.

Advertising in a newspaper pays, as a rule, in proportion to the number of readers it reaches.

Advertise in the STAR AND SENTINEL; it reaches the most intelligent and prosperous families in adjoining counties. It is read by at least 10,000 people weekly.

Advertising makes up for the disadvantages of a poorly located business stand. The one has the customers constantly at the door, whilst advertising draws customers right to the place.

THE COURSE OF LECTURES.—Three lectures yet. One on next Tuesday eve, by Rev. Dr. HART. The splendid address of this gentlemen to one of the Literary Societies at College some years ago authorizes us in saying that his "Hour with the Poets" will be a most charming thing. The committee hope there will be a large audiance. If there is, they then promise "The Silver Trumpet of the Philadelphia Bar"—Danl. Dougherty. for the next, or Francis Guerney Smith or one equally as good. On the 22d comes Rev. Dr. Willits whose grand rendering of "Excelsior," in the College church, some time ago will not soon be forgotten. This gentleman was engaged for the earlier part of the course, but his numerous appointments compelled him to break it. His subject is "Sunshine, or the Philosophy of a happy life," and an effort will be made to have him repeat "Excelsior." The price will be maintained at 35 cts., if the next two lectures make it possible. Season tickets only $1 00 for the three remaining lectures.

"THE CHURCH OF THE REDEEMER, as developed within the General Synod of the Lutheran Church in America," is the title of a work, from the pen of our townsman, Rev. S. S. SCHMUCKER, D. D., Emeritus Professor of Theology in the Theological Seminary at this place, a copy of which has been laid on our table. It is mainly designed as a vindication of the theological stand point and church polity represented by the General Synod, as the evangelical and liberal branch of the Lutheran Church in the United States, but has a wider scope in treating of the history of the Christian Church before, during and since the Reformation, and in this respect is an epitome of Church History. We need hardly say that it is characterized by much ability, thorough research, and an eminently Catholic spirit. Dr. SCHMUCKER has long enjoyed high reputation as a theological writer, distinguished for learning, clear style, and logical treatment of whatever he discusses. The work is a valuable and timely contribution, especially adapted to throw light on the controversies just now agitating the Lutheran Church, and will be read with interest by Christians of all denominations. The following notice of the work we find in the Methodist Home Journal:

This contribution of the learned and evangelical Dr. Schmucker, will be hailed with sincere pleasure, not only by the different Lutheran Synods in this country, of the American, German, Swedish and Norwegian nationalities, to whom it is especially dedicated, but by the "Church of God in general," as a valuable and practical exposition of the primitive apostolical spirit; an epitome of church history; and one of the most sensible and urgent overtures for Christian union we have ever met with.—We could wish for space in these columns to spread before our readers the grave considerations offered, showing the possibility and importance of a mighty consolidation of the energies of Protestantism for the formation and maintenance of Christian sentiment, and the promotion of truth and righteousness throughout the world. This volume contains but little that we cannot heartily commend.

1—CHARADE.

A sweet little girl with golden hair
Sat in the great old rocking-chair,
And while the kitten she fondled and nursed
She heard my gentle and murmuring first.
She sat and sang to herself in glee,
And the kitten slumbered on her knee;
A mouse from his hole in the wall peeped in;
And at once there was a terrible din;
And in quicker time than you could have reckoned
The kitten had given and gained my second.

A lady clad in gorgeous array,
With silk, and satin, and feathers gay,
Through every street went up and down,
And looked over all the dry goods in town;
Tumbled and tossed them all about
Till clerk after clerk was quite worn out,
When their patience was gone, and they were half dead,
She made my whole—of a spool of thread.

2—PUZZLE.

My first is in crumb, though you hardly would know it.
My second is also, for the letters will show it.
My third is in puzzel, and also in pun.
My fourth's in amusement, but is not in fun.
My fifth is in music, but not in the dancers.
My sixth's not in waltz, but is in the Lancers.
My seventh is in "Young Folks" and "Atlantic" as well,
My eight is there also, as quick you can tell.
My whole you surely must guess if you can,
He was long ago a most fashionable man.

3—GEOGRAPHICAL QUESTIONS.

What is the sharpest town in the Eastern States?
Which has the roughest roads?
Which is the most peaceful?
What lake pretends to be level land?
What town in the Middle States is an exclamation?
Which town is the greasiest?
Which town is the best to spend a Saturday in?
In what town would a criminal be unsafe?
What town is dangerous for animals with whiskers.
What town is dangerous for animals with fins? W. S. J.

OUR TOWN IS CERTAINLY IMPROVING—For we notice a real live Furniture Store recently opened by our enterprising young townsmen, A. M. HUNTER and JOHN M. WARNER. In looking over their stock we find everything needed with which to commence housekeeping, except a wife. They inform us, moreover, that they have made arrangements by which they can furnish any amount and any description of furniture on the shortest notice at very low prices. He freely confesses that he is indebted to this science for the virtues of his remedies, and advises that practical application of chemistry to medicine, the arts, manufactures, and agriculture be enjoined upon our colleges and schools.—Wrightsville, Pa., Star. 1t

GREAT SURPRISE.—We were astonished the other day in passing Arnold's old corner. NORRIS has changed his base to this corner, and is surprising every body that visits him by his large and cheap Stock of Clothing, Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c., &c. Give him a call. tf.

POMEROY'S DEMOCRAT.—This new paper has a wonderful circulation. In nearly every town in the country the democrats and workingmen are getting up clubs for it. It is the boldest, sharpest paper published, and walks into Congress and the Bondholders regardless of results. The paper has over fifty thousand subscribers in the State of New York alone. Send for sample copies, which are sent free, and see for yourselves. Address M. M. Pomeroy, Printing House Square, New York City. 1t

1026 MILES

OF THE

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD

ARE NOW COMPLETED.

As 534 miles of the western portion of the line, beginning at Sacramento, are also done, but about

200 MILES REMAIN

To be Finished, to Open the Grand Through Line to the Pacific. This Opening will certainly take place early this season.

Besides a donation from the Government of 12,800 acres of land per mile, the Company is entitled to a subsidy in U. S. Bonds on its line as completed and accepted, at the average rate of about $26,500 per mile, according to the difficulties encountered, for which the Government takes a second lien as security. Whether subsides are given to any other companies or not, the Government will comply with all its contracts with the Union Pacific Railroad Company. Nearly the whole amount of bonds to which the Company will be entitled have already been delivered.

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS AT PAR.

By its charter, the Company is permitted to issue its own FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS to the same amount as the Government Bonds, and no more. These Bonds are a First Mortgage upon the centre road and all its equipments.

THEY HAVE THIRTY YEARS TO RUN, AT SIX PER CENT., and, by special contract, both

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST ARE PAYABLE IN GOLD.

The U. S. Supreme Court has recently decided that this contract is in all respects valid and of legal obligation.

Such securities are generally valuable in proportion to the length of time they have to run. The longest six per cent. gold interest bonds of the U. S. (the '81's) will be due in 12 years, and they are worth 112. If they had 30 years to run, they would stand at not less than 125. A perfectly safe First Mortgage Bond like the Union Pacific should approach this rate. The demand for European investment is already considerable, and on the completion of the work will doubtless carry the price to a large premium.

SECURITY OF THE BONDS.

It needs no argument to show that a First Mortgage of $26,500 per mile upon what for a long time must be the only railroad connecting the Atlantic and Pacific States is PERFECTLY SECURE. The entire amount of the mortgage will be about $30,000,000, and the interest $1,800,000 per annum in gold. The present currency cost of this interest is less than $2,500,000 per annum, while the gross earnings for the year 1868, FROM WAY BUSINESS ONLY, ON AN AVERAGE OF LESS THAN 700 MILES OF ROAD IN OPERATION, WERE MORE THAN

FIVE MILLION DOLLARS,

The details of which are as follows:

From Passengers	$1,024,005.97
" Freight	2,040,233.19
" Express	51,423.08
" Mails	156,235.59
" Miscellaneous	91,626.27
" Government troops	104,077.77
" " freight	449,449.33
" Contractors' men	201,179.09
" " material	806,430.32
Total	$5,066,651.81

This large amount is only an indication of the immense traffic that must go over the through line in a few months, when the great tide of Pacific coast travel and trade will begin. It is estimated that this business must make the earnings of the road from FIFTEEN TO TWENTY MILLIONS A YEAR.

As the supply of these Bonds will soon cease, parties who desire to invest in them will find it for their interest to do so at once. The price for the present is par and accrued interest from Jan. 1, in currency. Subscriptions will be received in GETTYSBURG by the

FIRST NATIONAL BANK and GETTYSBURG NATIONAL BANK,
and in New York
AT THE COMPANY'S OFFICE, NO. 20 NASSAU ST.
AND BY
JOHN J. CISCO & SON, BANKERS, No. 59 WALL St.,

And by the Company's advertised agents throughout the United States.

Bonds sent free, but parties subscribing through local agents, will look to them for their safe delivery.

A NEW PAMPHLET AND MAP was issued October 1st, containing a report of the progress of the work to that date, and a more complete statement in relation to the value of the bonds than can be given in an advertisement, which will be sent free on application at the company's offices, or to any of the advertised agents.

FARMERS, Fruit Growers & Gardeners,

Beal's "Improved Patent Fruit Tree Invigorator and Vine Insect Destroyer."

THIS is truly one of the greatest discoveries ever made—combining the most useful ingredients ever known for fruit grain and general vegetation. As a fertilizer, it has no equal. When applied to the tree it penetrates every pore—destroying every species of insect, and the worm in the heart of the tree or plant—connecting with the mineral substance of the earth, destroys the cause and prevents the creation of any destructive insect. It will prevent Curculio from stinging the plum. It will kill the peach grub. It will loosen the knot and old bark on the vine and tree—slough off the same and re-bark the stock. In a word, it re-living [illegible] the whole tree and gives it health and strength to withstand the severity of the weather and retain its fruit. It will destroy all insects which infest the pot-flowers, cucumbers, potatoes, tomatoes, plants, &c. and stimulate their growth. It will prevent weevil, mildew, rust or the fly from touching the wheat, and the cut worm from the corn. It is now extensively used in the Western States, and persons who use it would not be without it for one thousand times its value. No man who has a single fruit tree can afford to be without it. Upon application, we will refer to persons who are using it in Berks county, and would not take $1000 for their recipe, we will give residence and address. The undersigned have purchased the sole right to use and apply the Invigorator, within the counties of York, Cumberland, Adams, Franklin, Chester, Delaware, Montgomery, Lehigh and Philadelphia City and county, and are now prepared to sell township or county rights. Persons who have purchased township have made as high as $90 to $100 per day selling farm rights at from $5 to $10 per recipe.

I want to rouse each sleepy head,
Who stand upon the brink,
Where yawning gulfs disclose the dead,
Who might, but did not, think.

I want to warn the living ones
Who blindly grope along,
Ye fathers, daughters, mothers, sons,
What perils round you throng!

Look out, my reader, are you free,
Or do you wear the mark?
Most all are blind and cannot see,
Yea, groping in the dark.

Catarrh, a demon in the head,
Consumption is its son;
Kills hosts, yes, countless millions, dead,
Perhaps you may be one.

That hacking, hawking, spitting, shows,
Catarrh affects your head,
Matter and slime in throat or nose,
Runs down your throat instead.

Your lungs and liver soon will show,
Consumption has its birth;
Catarrh, its sire, will feed it too,
'Till you return to earth.

If colds affect your head and throat,
ANNIHILATOR buy;
Now don't forget what I have wrote,
Or think this subject dry.

WOLCOTT'S ANNIHILATOR cures
Catarrh—the demon flies;
It saves the lungs, good health insures,
And Catarrh quickly dies.

I want to gratify my friends,
Who wish to understand
About PAIN PAINT, its use, its ends,
And why its great demand.

I want to show you, plain as day,
Why PAIN PAINT stops all pain,
That you may never have to say
"I'll not try paint again."

PAIN PAINT will cool but never stain;
Pumps inflammation out;
'Tis harmless on the breast or brain,
A trial stops all doubt.

When inflammation leaves the frame,
All pain will cease at once;
Remove the cause, 'tis all the same;
None doubts unless a dunce.

The pores will ope and drink PAIN PAINT;
Absorbents fill with ease;
Restores the weak, the sick, the faint,
The greatest skeptic please.

Evaporation cools the place
As inflammation flies;
Hot blood at the absorbent's base
Makes PAINT in vapor rise.

'Tis thus PAIN PAINT removes all doubt,
Removes the very cause
By pumping inflammation out;
On this we rest our cause.

Wolcott's Pain Paint is sold at all Drug Stores; also, Wolcott's Annihilator, for the cure of Catarrh and Colds in the head. Sent by Express on receipt of the money, at 181 Chatham Square, N. Y. R. L. Wolcott, Proprietor. [Feb. 26.—4w

STICK TO ONE THING.

There are many farmers who do not stick to one thing long enough to make it pay, and consequently they lose in everything.—At one time they conclude to devote themselves to stock raising. Before they get fairly under good headway in this, they change their minds, and go back to raising grain. Some again make a specialty, for a time, of a certain crop—wheat, corn, or potatoes, for instance. While they are following this specialty, the crops may be small and the prices low, and they turn to another just in time to miss large crops and good prices in what they have left.

The best farmers we have observed are those who first find out what their soil is best adapted to produce. They then turn their energies in that line. A poor crop does not discourage them. They keep on, and are sure to be finally successful.

To illustrate our idea:—We once knew a farmer who made it a point to fatten from twenty-five to thirty hogs every year. Let the price of pork be high or low, he every year had his lot of hogs of about the usual number. He took great pride in having the best in the neighborhood. Some years, perhaps, he might have done better by selling his corn instead of feeding it. Some years, perhaps, he might have done better by turning his whole attention to some other specialty in farming. But we always noticed this, that, taking one year with another for a long time, say ten years, he made the hogs pay. He was a successful farmer.

Another farmer near by, every year planted potatoes. Sometimes his crop would fail, and sometimes when he had a good crop the price would be low. But he kept straight forward. Every spring he planted potatoes. The result in that case was the same as that in the other. Take one year with another for a considerable number of years, he made the potato crop pay. He, too, was a successful farmer.

The farmer who would make his business pay, must have a policy, and must adhere to it.—American Farmers' Magazine.

Keeping Stock.—Some farmers miss it by keeping too much stock, and more by not keeping the best, and those adapted to their farm; it is no more trouble to keep Jersey cows than the natives, and when a calf is born of the popular and profitable breed, Jersey, Ayshire, Devon or Shorthorn, it is worth twenty times as much as the progeny of the scrub. You know pretty well what you have in one case, while on the other hand all is doubt and uncertainty. The cheap cow has produced another equally valueless, and so its owner is discouraged, and finds he "can't get along" raising cattle. Many farmers miss it by half feeding the stock they have, forgetting that by keeping their cattle just alive through the winter they get no profit whatever on the food they consumed, because there is no gain in flesh or fat; the condition in the spring is no better than it was in the fall, while the animal, the cow for instance, comes out in a weak and feeble state, and cannot go out to grass, fit to produce milk in abundance. The drain on the system of the cow in milk is very great, consequently the feeding of the stock through the winter should be liberal, and such as will keep the cow, even when dry, in a thriving and blooming state of health. Some roots or other succulent food are almost as much needed occasionaly for a dry cow in winter, as for a cow in milk. No poor feeder can expect to "get along" well, because stock lies at the foundation of all successful farming; it is the pivot on which it all turns, and stock half fed and poorly kept impoverishes instead of enriching the farm.

Eggs in Winter.—J. L. Peabody, of Macoupin, Illinois, tells the Peoria Farmer what he learned of a Kansas man about making hens lay in winter:

"He told me if I would let my hens huddle together in some warm corner, and not let them roost, I should get plenty of eggs. I had about twenty hens; my hen house was a rough shed, eight feet square, with a small window and door on the east. I took down all the roosting poles, leaving the nest boxes only. With a few short boards I made a small shed, about four feet square, on the south side of the larger one, and covered it with corn-fodder. (Straw is better.) I made a hole for the hens to pass from the large house into the small one. The result was my hens continued to lay all through the cold weather.

You will have to drive them in a few times at first; they will soon learn to go in themselves. Put in wood ashes occasionally to keep them free from vermin. There are a great many who are not able to build an extensive hennery. But any one can fix up a place like this in an hour or two, with very little expense."

Manure for Potatoes.—An exchange says the following receipt for raising potatoes is worth the price of any paper for one year, to any farmer that is short of manure. It is as good as the best superphosphate of lime and will not cost half so much. It has been tried two years, and is good on dry land: Take one cask of lime and slack it with water, and then stir in one bushel of fine salt, and then mix in loam or ashes enough, so that it will not become mortar; it will make about five barrels. Put half a pint in a hill at planting. All manures containing potash are particularly suitable for the potato. Ashes contain more than any other natural fertilizer, and should be freely used and carefully saved. Any farmer seeing the analysis of the ashes of potatoes, given in last week's paper, can readily imagine what fertilizers produce the greatest effect, and what the plant needs.—New York Independent.

Smutty Corn Poisonous.—Several cattle have died suddenly of late, in the western part of Massachusetts, which is attributed by a correspondent of the New England Homestead, to their eating smutty corn, which was found in most fields the past autumn, to an unusual extent. Some cattle having died at West Springfield, Professor Gamgee, who chanced to be near at hand, was called, and decided that the disease was undoubtedly caused by the smut on the corn with which the cattle had been fed. He prescribed purgatives for the cure of the living, and thought that with proper and timely care there would be little difficulty in saving the lives of cattle which are attacked. His prescription is a pound of epson salts, an ounce of aloes or five pounds of sulphur and two ounces of ginger, the whole mixed in water and poured down the throat of the sick animal.

At a farmers' Club in Long Meadow several men gave their experience in cow feeding. Mr. Allen said he had found that wheat shorts make the sweetest milk, rye bran the whitest, Indian meal the richest, and oil cake the most. Clover, they thought, should be cut early, not mowed away dry, but stored, a little damp, between layers of straw. Four quarts of oil cake a day is too much for a cow; she will be likely to calve prematurely.

Potato Changes.—Small potatoes are generally the latest in maturing, and therefore planting such for a succession will have a tendency to make the period of ripening later, so that a comparatively early variety may become late. Such is said to be the fact with the Peach Blow. To improve the early ripening quality of potatoes, plant large tubers from the most Northern potato-growing region.—Rural New Yorker.

A CERTAIN CURE
AND
PREVENTIVE OF DISEASES.

The ZINGARI BITTERS are compounded from a prescription of the celebrated Egyptian physician Dr. Cheopses, who, after years of trial and experiment, discovered the Zingarini Herb—the most remarkable vegetable production the earth, perhaps, has ever yielded—certainly the most effective in the cure of disease. It, in combination with the other valuable properties of which the ZINGARI BITTERS is composed, will cure

Dyspepsia, Fever and Ague, Billious Fever, Cholic, Colds, Bronchitis, Consumption in its first stage, Flatulency, Nervous Debility, Female Complaints, Rheumatism, Dysentery, Acute and Chronic Diarrhœa, Cholera Morbus, Cholera, Typhoid and Typhus Fever, Yellow Fever, Scrofula, Diseases of the Kidneys, Habitual Costiveness, &c., &c.

[illegible] CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

[illegible]

Although [illegible] Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known, that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. [illegible] radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

THE GREAT

Invigorator and Restorer OF THE Vitality of the Stomach.

Prepared from Pure Vegetable Materials.

Pure Tonics and the most Pleasant Aromatics.

This invaluable Remedy for Dyspepsia and General Debility of the system is offered to the public, after a fair trial of its merits, with entire confidence that it will command their approval. It has been submitted, with the materials which compose it, to practising Physicians—among others to Dr. M. D. G. Pfeiffer, one of our oldest and most eminent Physicians, residing at New Oxford, who, after examination, pronounced it a Remedy which would not fail to show its salutary effects, when properly administered, in cases of Dyspepsia, springing from an old age and debilitating effects of serious inward disease—weakening, and at last destroying the nerve to power of the stomach itself—and therefore entitling it to be emphatically called "The Great Invigorator."

Dr. W. J. McClure, another prominent Physician of New Oxford, thus gives his opinion:

New Oxford, Dec. [illegible], 1868.

Mr. John Busbey.

Dear Sir:—At your request I have examined "The Great Invigorator," prepared by you, and the formula from which it is prepared. It is composed of some of the most powerful vegetable tonics and most pleasant aromatics known to our profession, and I have no hesitancy in recommending it in Chronic cases of Dyspepsia, and in all cases of Indigestion resulting from debility of the Stomach. Believing that, if properly used, it will be of incalculable benefit to the suffering of our race, I subscribe myself,

Yours, very respectfully,

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

FOR THE RENOVATION OF THE HAIR.

The Great Desideratum of the Age.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color and the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts longer on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Sourness or Acidity of Stomach, Rising of Food, Flatulency, Lassitude, Weariness, finally terminating in Death

Are as surely cured by this potent remedy, as the patient takes it. Although but five years before the people, what is the verdict of the masses? Hear what Lester Sexton, of Milwaukee, says:

Gentlemen:—It gives me great pleasure to state that my wife has derived great benefit from the use of Coe's Dyspepsia Cure. She has been for a number of years greatly troubled with Dyspepsia, accompanied by violent paroxysms of constipation which so prostrated her that she was all the while, for months, unable to do anything. She took, at your instance, Coe's Dyspepsia Cure, and has derived GREAT BENEFIT FROM IT, and is now comparatively well. She regards this medicine as a great blessing.
